Being advised that the appellant in these consolidated appeals from two separate cases involving personal protection orders has filed a brief on appeal that raises issues only with respect to one of the cases, and it appearing to the Court that the appellant filed the single claim of appeal in these cases with the intention to obtain review only with respect to the case where she was found in contempt for violation of a personal protection order, the Court, on its own motion, pursuant to MCR 7.216(A)(7), orders that the appeal from the order granting a personal protection order in docket number 258949 is DISMISSED as abandoned or not intended.
