Judges

The Court orders that the parties file supplemental briefs on the matters that the Supreme Court has directed this Court to consider on remand, including: (1) whether the district court correctly concluded that Roberts lacked the authority to conduct a stop of defendant; (2) whether defendant knew or had reason to know that Roberts was performing his duties at the time of defendant's conduct; and (3) whether Roberts' command to stop was lawful. Plaintiff-appellant shall file a supplemental brief no later than 42 days from the date of the Clerk's certification of this order. Defendant-appellee shall file his supplemental responsive brief within 28 days of the proof of service of appellant's supplemental brief. Plaintiff-appellant may file a reply brief within 14 days of the proof of service of appellee's supplemental brief.
