On the Court's own motion, the trial court's August 22, 2018 order terminating appellant's parental rights is AFFIRMED. The trial court's finding that appellant was still in a relationship with and living with respondent father in light of the trial court's earlier findings as to the reasons for terminating his parental rights – and despite this Court giving appellant an opportunity to take appropriate action - amply supports the finding of a ground for terminating her parental rights based on her failure to take appropriate actions to rectify the conditions causing the children to come under the lower court's jurisdiction. See MCL 712A.19b(3)(c).
