The Court orders that motion to remand is DENIED. The present motion does not seek relief properly sought in a motion to remand. See MCR 7.211(C)(1)(a). Rather, regardless of appellant's subjective intent in bringing the present motion, it objectively amounts to a disguised motion for peremptory reversal. See MCR 7.211(C)(4). However, we will not treat the present motion as a motion for peremptory reversal because doing so would be unfair to appellees. This order is without prejudice to the ability of appellant to file a proper motion for peremptory reversal if it considers it appropriate to do so.
